What's happening in the middle school?

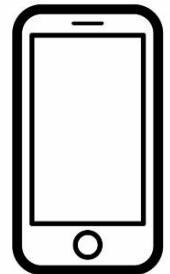

Changes for 2019-20

There have been some changes to the middle school bell schedule. There will now be 8 class periods, an advisor period, and lunch. Students will have advisor period at least every other day. During this time students will have the opportunity to work with teachers on assignments, receive extra help, receive character education, and, at times, go outside or use the gymnasium. This change will allow our students to work closely with our staff to help ensure that they are successful.

Updated Cell Phone Policy

Middle and high school students may not use cell phones or electronic devices in instructional settings unless specifically approved by the regular classroom teacher for a specific instructional activity. Examples of instructional settings include, but are not limited to, any scheduled course, specific presentations, and/or assembly programs. Middle and high school students may use cell phones or electronic devices in non-instructional settings. Examples of non-instructional settings include lunch/recess, in the halls during bell passing, and during study hall (middle school students do not have study halls).

It should be noted that the appropriate use of cell phones and electronic devices is expected. The use of cell phones and electronic devices in non-instructional settings is a privilege and can be revoked from individuals or groups of students.
